

Prof. Balestra is an associated professor in Plant Pathology. His works mainly focus on developing innovative approaches in sustainable crop protection strategies. Since many years he has been studying biocontrol agents, natural active principles, molecular plant-pathogen interactions, and nanotechnology. These findings are published in more than 100 original articles and books' chapters.