

Stefano Caon is manager at the Environment, Energy and Land Use Department of Piemonte Region, where he is currently in charge of a unit dedicated to the managing of structural funds and institutional communication. He graduated at the Polytechnic of Turin in Environmental Engineering in 2006, then he worked for more than 16 years in public bodies, mainly on environmental issues. His professional activity specifically focused on the implementation of public policies and projects related to energy (renewable energies, energy efficiency, energy planning, public funding strategies for economy decarbonization).