

Niklas König obtained his PhD in polymer chemistry in 2018 at the CNRS in Strasbourg (France). His postdoctoral research with Prof. Stefan Hecht at Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin (Germany) focused on photochemistry. As one of the first employees, he joined xolo GmbH in 2020 and has contributed to evolving the company's volumetric 3D printing technology. Now he leads materials R&D.