

Susanna Romano is a research fellow in Applied Electronics at “Roma Tre University”. In 2022 she received her MSc. degree in Industrial Chemistry at “La Sapienza University”. Moreover, she was the winner of an Erasmus+ traineeship grant where she carried out three months of research at the University of Lodz (Poland) under the supervision of prof. David Stawski. Her research activity is based on the study of thermoplastic starch and new biodegradable materials for various applications.