

Leonardo Schirone is an early career investigator at “Sapienza” – University of Rome. His training includes a master's degree in medical biotechnologies and a PhD in molecular medicine. His research is focused on discovering new molecular mechanisms underlying cardiovascular diseases. Among these, particular interest was put on the Hippo pathway and anthracycline-induced cardiomyopathy.