

MSc. Eng. Maciej Smoliński, PhD student, Faculty of Chemistry, Warsaw University of Technology

I'm a PhD student in Faculty of Chemistry of Warsaw University of Technology. In the area of my research there are modern electrode materials used in new generation battery cells. I work mainly with lithium-ion and lithium-sulfur cathodic and anodic materials, including the electrode preparation process, powder synthesis, component optimization, additives selection and electrochemical performance analysis.