

Aldo Winkler is a senior technologist, responsible of the research unit "paleomagnetism" of Istituto Nazionale di Geofisica e Vulcanologia. He deals with the magnetism of rocks and minerals, mainly focusing on the magnetic biomonitoring of airborne particulate matter.

For over 25 years he has managed the paleomagnetic laboratory of INGV, as a reference European research infrastructure among Earth Sciences. Active in scientific outreach and dissemination, he is author of tens of high impact factor scientific publications.